Supplementary Table ST2. Data associated with the satisfaction of trainees with research training and opportunities in medical school and self-reported benefits of attending the symposium.

(A) Trainees' (n=87) satisfaction with access to medical training, support, and mentorship at their home institutions.

Question	(No Response)	Strongly disagree	Somewhat disagree	Neither agree nor disagree	Somewhat agree	Strongly agree
My school encourages students to pursue research as part of their training	5 (5.7%)	10 (11.5%)	18 (20.7%)	8 (9.2%)	20 (23%)	26 (29.9%)
My school provides research opportunities as part of training	5 (5.7%)	16 (18.4%)	9 (10.3%)	10 (11.5%)	27 (31%)	20 (23%)
My school provides adequate training in the design and conduct of research	5 (5.7%)	14 (16.1%)	20 (23%)	14 (16.1%)	27 (31%)	7 (8%)
Students at my school are satisfied with their access to research training and mentorship	5 (5.7%)	23 (26.4%)	25 (28.7%)	15 (17.2%)	15 (17.2%)	4 (4.6%)
I have adequate access to research mentorship through my school	6 (6.9%)	20 (23%)	22 (25.3%)	16 (18.4%)	19 (21.8%)	4 (4.6%)

(B) Impact of the symposium on trainee interest in research.

Question	(No Response)	Strongly disagree	Somewhat disagree	Neither agree nor disagree	Somewhat agree	Strongly agree
This symposium increased my interest in research	2 (2.3%)	15 (17.2%)	0 (0%)	1 (1.1%)	4 (4.6%)	65 (74.7%)
Research topics were informative and educational	3 (3.4%)	14 (16.1%)	1 (1.1%)	0 (0%)	4 (4.6%)	65 (74.7%)
Listening to others present was inspiring	3 (3.4%)	14 (16.1%)	1 (1.1%)	1 (1.1%)	7 (8%)	61 (70.1%)
Listening to feedback from the judges inspired my own research	2 (2.3%)	13 (14.9%)	0 (0%)	1 (1.1%)	5 (5.7%)	66 (75.9%)

(C) Impact of the symposium on trainee interest in submitting to future conferences.

Question	(No Response)	Extremely unlikely	Somewhat unlikely	Neither likely nor unlikely	Somewhat likely	Extremely likely
This symposium increased the likelihood I will submit an abstract to another conference	4 (4.6%)	1 (1.1%)	1 (1.1%)	1 (1.1%)	10 (11.5%)	70 (80.5%)

(D) Trainees self-reported benefit from symposium keynote presentations.

Question	(No Response)	Poor	Fair	Good	Very Good	Excellent
I benefited from the keynote presentations	2 (2.3%)	0 (0%)	1 (1.1%)	1 (1.1%)	15 (17.2%)	68 (78.2%)

Supplementary Table ST3. Self-reported benefits of the symposium for trainee abstract presenters (n=28)

(A) Impact of the presenting experience on presenter research future directions, scientific networking and feedback, and desire to participate in future conferences.

Question	No	Yes
This symposium gave me new ideas to extend my current research	2	26	92.86%
This was my first time receiving formative feedback from conference judges	6	22	78.57%
Fellow attendees reached out with feedback or questions after my presentation	4	24	85.71%
I will submit my work to future conferences	1	27	96.43%

(B) Self-perceived benefit of the symposium on the quality of presenters' work.

Question	Neither true nor false	Probably true	Definitely true
The quality of my work has been improved by presenting at this symposium	1	5	22	78.57%

(C) Self-perceived aspects of presenters' projects that improved due to presenting at the symposium (multiple responses permitted).

Presenting at This Symposium Gave Me Ways to Improve	Total Participants	Number of Presenters	% Presenters
Writing / Presentation	28	24	86%
Interpretation	28	18	64%
Data analysis	28	16	57%
Data collection	28	9	32%
Other	28	1	4%
